7 Reasons to Study Luxury in Switzerland

Fashion exclusive items, luxurious leather bags, perfumes and watches: premium brands inspire us with their promise of high quality products, crafted from the finest materials. What do they have to do with a Swiss hospitality management institution? Read on to find out more.

In the last 20 years, the global market for personal luxury goods has grown by 300 per cent, with a strong expansion in emerging economies and new affordable luxury brands reaching the store windows. But luxury consumers and the way they shop are changing quickly: sales are now made across borders by travellers and a younger generation is deciding purchases online. To create unique experiences consistently across all channels, luxury brands are relying on the interpersonal skills of hospitality graduates and their ability to deliver five-star experiences in the luxury industry.

Since 1962, Glion Institute of Higher Education in Montreux and with a campus in the vibrant city of London since 2013, has been creating talents and leaders for the world of hospitality. Over the last ten years, luxury brands have been recruiting graduates with hospitality skills; and Glion is the first hospitality management institution to launch a luxury brand management specialization at bachelor degree level.

Hospitality: A world of opportunities for young entrepreneurs

Sonia Tatar, CEO Worldwide of Les Roches Global Hospitality Education explains how a changing hospitality landscape is giving way to a new breed of entrepreneurs and how educators should best prepare them for success.

Entrepreneurship: a trend among millennials

At just 20 to 35 years old, more millennials are becoming entrepreneurs, already creating and starting up more new companies, managing larger, more agile teams, and targeting higher profits and returns than previous generations, according to a recent study by BNP Paribas. The reasons for this development are manifold: the corporate environment is becoming less appealing and attractive to this generation, who cherish freedom and creativity as key aspects in the workplace, while barriers to entrepreneurship are lower. Technology and the co-owning spirit of the sharing economy have heavily contributed as well: Young entrepreneurs are inspired by the success of companies such as Airbnb and Uber, which have raised an impressive 1.5 and 2.1 billion US$ in 2015 alone, and they see themselves following this trend and creating new fast-growing businesses.

An expanding travel and tourism industry

Despite international uncertainties and security concerns, the global travel and tourism industry continues to grow at an impressive rate: More than one billion tourists travel to an international destination every year, while tourism contributes 10% of global GDP and 6% of the world's total exports, according to the UNWTO 2015 Report. Behind this surging demand for travel is the millennial generation: increasingly mobile consumers who travel more than their seniors. They are more flexible in their travel plans and rely on technology and social platforms to find the best experiences suited to their lifestyle, needs and budget. This explains the emergence in the hospitality market of new concepts and "sharing economy" platforms.

Why teaching entrepreneurship is key

These examples highlight the tendencies of this coming generation, but also their importance in shaping the future of the hospitality industry and ultimately the global economy. The key question for every educational institution should be whether the right skills are taught to this generation of graduates to help them think and act as successful entrepreneurs in the future. There is some debate among academics about whether entrepreneurship can actually be taught or if it is more a state of mind. As Karl Ulrich, Vice Dean of Entrepreneurship and Innovation at The Wharton School, points out, we need to distinguish between knowledge transfer and practical learning. Universities must provide both the supportive setting and the expert guidance most conducive to learning from experience. Entrepreneurship professor Tina Seelig of Stanford University believes that creative problem-solving skills, leadership abilities, working on effective teams, and adaptability in an ever-changing environment are the cornerstones of an entrepreneurship education.

We see entrepreneurship as the catalyst for change and evolution within the hospitality industry, whereby entrepreneurship is more than a wave of new start-ups — it is about fostering an entrepreneurial spirit that challenges the status quo, disrupting traditional ways of doing business with innovative solutions. Nurturing entrepreneurial thinking is also essential for employers: By believing in their creative potential, businesses empower entrepreneurial employees to bring innovative change to a company from within.

Preparing entrepreneurs for hospitality

Thanks to our unique model of education, combining practical hospitality courses with internships and management lectures, students obtain hands-on experience and put their learning to work. In a diverse learning environment with peers from over 90 different countries, they are already required to develop valuable leadership and soft skills during their studies. To equip young entrepreneurs with the relevant hard skills, Les Roches offers an entrepreneurship stream for its hospitality management programs, teaching students to develop an understanding of strategic market opportunities, financial values and returns, and project management as well as organizational effectiveness. As part of their studies, they develop their own hospitality business concepts and enter global competitions with students from other institutions. As educators, we are committed to offering students a safe environment that empowers them to launch their own projects and events, from TEDx talks and innovation summits to hosting wine fairs. They develop their own approaches and take ownership of entire projects, under the expert guidance of the school's faculty.

Entrepreneurs for success

In order to reinforce this entrepreneurial direction, we are happy to announce our new collaboration with Seedstars World, a start-up platform linking entrepreneurs and investors in emerging economies. Through this partnership, our student entrepreneurs will gain access to workshops, launch pad events, bootcamps and a unique global network of entrepreneurs that will help their pursuit of creating viable new businesses. We are proud to already see 33% of our global alumni succeeding with their own business ventures: A young alumna co-founded mobile booking app Hot Hotels, which recently received an award for best start-up in Andalusia. We have highlighted the success of many more alumni entrepreneurs on our Made in Les Roches entrepreneurship map. Over the years, we hope to add many more successful profiles of graduate entrepreneurs as they continue to impact and transform the global hospitality industry of the future.

Disrupter. Innovator. Game changer.

Launch your world-class career with an education that is as entrepreneurial as you are.

PANAGIOTA

Introductions are not necessary for one of the oldest tavernas in Arachova. 'Hidden' behind the church of Agios Giorgios, it is one of the most famous and sought after spots in the cosmopolitan destination. Panagiota's Greek cuisine is particularly tasty. Make sure you try the 'Panagiota' fillet, the 'Melomeni' salad and one of the dishes of the day. Accompany your meal with wine or rakomelo. You should know that there are legendary, impromptu (karaoke) parties at Panagiota's every Saturday and Sunday afternoon and the place literally bursts at the seams. VASILIKIA MOUNTAIN FARM & RETREAT

Certain aspects of the farm – such as the organic garden, the pond with its dam and wooden bridge, the rock garden full of herbs, the tree house, the stone fountain and the natural spring fed by water from a mountain peak deep in the national park – help create a truly idyllic setting that is far from commonplace.

The chapel with its bell tower, which looks like it has been lifted from an Alpine slope, the Taverna Lodge, where guests can enjoy meals, snacks and drinks or play games beside the wood-burning stove, the stable with its traditional wooden facade reminiscent of Normandy and a hayloft full of authentic ethnic memorabilia, the charming rabbit hutch, the tractor shed, the stone-built pen and drinking trough for the sheep and goats, the cheese dairy, the poultry house and pond for the ducks, geese, turkeys, chickens and guinea fowl which roam freely, all serve to confirm Vasilikia's credentials as a genuine working farm. New Turkish restaurant and bar YOSMA is bringing the three pillars of Istanbul's eating out culture... meyhane, mangal and seafood...to Marylebone.

The meyhane, a Turkish version of a tavern, comes in the shape of a raki lounge bar, which serves cocktails designed by Matt Whiley, and an open kitchen takes care of the mangal and seafood elements.

THE ARTS CLUB

The Arts Club was founded in 1863 by men of vision in order to provide a haven for those people who had professional or amateur relationships with the Arts, Literature or Sciences.

In 1896, the Club relocated from its original home on Hanover Square to its present elegant 18th Century townhouse at 40 Dover Street, affording its members a comfortable and impressive base in Mayfair. It has survived two world wars, including a direct hit on the building during the Blitz of 1940.

LOULOU'S 5 HERTFORD STREET

Behind an unmarked maroon door, in the midst of Shepherd Market, lies a haven of exclusive luxury. The 18th Century townhouse that is 5 Hertford Street boasts two restaurants, three bars, a cinema room and the glamorous nightclub LouLou's. In the two short years since its opening the club has become a coveted nightspot and has been frequented by royals, business tycoons and A-list celebrities. HARRY'S BAR

Venetian chandeliers and Fortuny fabrics, Murano glassware and a polished wooden floor create an atmosphere of relaxed luxury, reinforced by the knowledgeable and attentive service.

PARIS

Paris is one of the most beautiful cities on earth, a truth easily appreciated on a stroll that could yield one stunning vista after another, from the epic Eiffel Tower to the regal Jardin des Tuileries to the petite cafés bursting onto the sidewalks.

The city offers a timeless familiarity for first-time and frequent visitors, with instantly recognisable architectural icons, along with exquisite cuisine, chic boutiques and priceless artistic treasures.

Beyond the city's visual appeal, the cultural riches of the French capital are unsurpassed. Whether you opt to explore the historic, fashion-conscious, bourgeois, or bohemian and arty sides of Paris, one thing is certain: the City of Light will always enthrall.

RITZ PARIS

When opened by César Ritz in 1898, this was the most innovative hotel in Paris; the first to have lifts, electricity and private bathrooms. While presumably adding vast amounts of hidden cabling and replanting the garden courtyard, the modern hotel has preserved its period furniture and paintings à la Louis XV, and kept some of the cult features like the divisive gold swan taps. The 142 rooms and suites are crammed with patterned carpets, Empire-style lamps, chandeliers, canopied beds, rococo desks, embossed velvet sofas, and period oil paintings. The hotel has the world's first Chanel spa, bringing a gentle waft of perfume, to accompany the gym and the galleried indoor pool, kept at a tropical 31°C.

LE BRISTOL

Le Bristol is one of the best joints in town: a long-established and distinguished hotel in one of the city's most fashionable streets with excellent service. Don't miss the absolutely top-notch restaurant Epicure, or the exquisite spa and indoor rooftop pool. There are 188 guest rooms, many overlooking the inner courtyards and well soundproofed from city noise. They are feminine in style with fresh, floral fabrics reflecting the hotel's trademark colours, vivid green and dark pink, with co-ordinating bedspreads, and a classic mix of chandeliers, Regency-style furniture and neutrally-toned walls.

FOUR SEASONS HOTEL GEORGE V PARIS

Palatial comfort, space, gastronomy and the most remarkable flower displays in town sum up the sumptuous George V, situated in the Champs-Élysées golden triangle, with plenty of high - end fashion shopping in the vicinity. Suites all have vast dressing rooms – ready for substantial shopping sprees, the largest Royal and Presidential suites come with lounge, office, dining room and kitchen area, ripe for business meetings or entire families. All are in various historic styles, except for the modern Penthouse in smooth marble with several terraces, a corner dining room and outdoor sunbed. The hotel has three restaurants which hold Michelin stars.

HOTEL PLAZA ATHENEE

This 'Palace' hotel (a notch up from five-star) drips with luxury on one of Paris' most fashionable streets, close to the Champs Elysees. The grand reception, with brushed oak desks, has showy flower arrangements in silver cones mounted on pillars circling a mosaic marble floor.

The ground-floor Alain Ducasse restaurant has silver banquettes, a wall cabinet of the chef's culinary equipment and shimmering crystal-drop chandeliers. Some rooms have warm yellow, peony and silver colour schemes, others are in more masculine purples set off by cream or soft grey walls with shiny black lacquer furniture and modern art on walls. Some on the top of the hotel have superb views of the Eiffel Tower.

ALAIN DUCASSE AT PLAZA ATHENEE

The sheer glamour factor would be enough to recommend this restaurant, Alain Ducasse's most lofty Paris undertaking. The dining room ceiling drips with 10,000 crystals. An amuse-bouche of a single langoustine in a lemon cream with a touch of Iranian caviar starts the meal off beautifully, but other dishes can be inconsistent: a part-raw/part-cooked salad of autumn fruit and veg in a red, Chinese-style sweet-and-sour dressing, or Breton lobster in an overwhelming sauce of apple, quince and spiced wine. Cheese is predictably delicious, as is the rum baba comme à Monte-Carlo.

EVI EVANE

Evi Evane is a family business run by two sisters who shared a dream to open their own restaurant to pay tribute to their mom's cooking. In 2005 their wish finally comes true! Dina Nikolaou who fell in love with Paris decides to open the restaurant in the city and to help parisians get acquainted with real Greek Gastronomy.

Made only with fresh products, directly imported from Greece, the restaurant menu offers traditional meals with Evi Evane's signature. Maria Nikolaou, the restaurant manager pays a very special attention to quality of service which she often associates to a saying from Brillat Savarin: "Welcoming someone means to be in charge of his or her happiness the time that this person spends under your roof".

EPICURE

The jewel in this hotel's crown is Epicure, the triple Michelin-starred restaurant overseen by Eric Frechon. It was Nicolas Sarkozy's favourite haunt when he was in office, and the food is positively ambrosial. Chiefly drawing on French produce and tradition, starters might include stuffed macaroni with black truffle followed by Bresse pigeon. At €295, the seven-course tasting menu is for serious gourmands only. A much more affordable option, with its own street entrance (and Michelin star), is 114 Faubourg next door, which serves imaginative brasserie-style cooking prepared in an open kitchen.

RESTAURANT LE CINQ

Spacious and bright, decorated in shades of gold and grey, it gives its guests the sentiment of dining in a private chateau. Boasting traditional French and English furniture, guests can admire two beautiful Louis XIVth wardrobes as well as two Louis XVth gold gilt chairs. Large Regency Style wood-sculpted mirrors with gold leafing give a depth to this space by reflecting the view of the Marble Courtyard on the opposite side.

Two very large Regency Style pier tables separate the main room from the guest table that seats between eight to ten.
